FINANCIAL AID

Master's Students

Gifts from alumni and other donors have supported Crown Family School students with vital financial aid across generations, thus enabling Crown Family School to award 95 percent of our master's students with merit- and need-based tuition scholarships. Partial- to full-tuition scholarships are awarded. To be eligible for Crown Family School scholarships, applicants should complete the scholarship page that is part of the application for admission. Awards are renewable each year of a student's program provided they remain in good standing in their program with at least a 3.0 GPA. Students receive a separate confirmation of the award renewal each year.

Doctoral Students

Doctoral students receive significant funding to ensure that they are able to immerse themselves in the program. All students entering the Doctoral Program are offered a financial aid package that includes full tuition, health insurance, fees, and a yearly stipend set at $32,000 for the current 2021-22 academic year ($28,000 for the Autumn, Winter, and Spring quarters and $4,000 for Summer). Students are responsible for filing and paying any required state or federal taxes.

Domestic students' stipend awards are not subject to federal or state income tax withholding and domestic students may be required to make quarterly estimated income tax payments to the IRS and State of Illinois. Federal tax code requires the remuneration allocated to teaching assistantships to be treated as wages subject to tax withholding, and processed through the payroll system. Thus, in quarters when students TA or serve as a graduate student lecturer, their stipend payment will be reduced and they will receive payment for the reduced amount through the payroll system and subject to withholding. We suggest students consult with a tax advisor who can provide specific advice for individual situations.

The doctoral program involves a full-time commitment. Stipend support is provided in order to allow students to concentrate their time and energy on fulfilling the requirements of the program, developing their scholarship, and completing their doctoral studies in a timely manner.

Many Crown Family School doctoral students receive additional funding through outside training and fellowship programs. Crown Family School students have been very successful in obtaining competitive fellowships and awards from entities such as the CSWE Fellowships for Minority Students, Fahs-Beck dissertation grants, Doris Duke fellowships for the promotion of child well-being, and NIH Dissertation awards.

As part of their financial aid packages, students are expected in their first two years to work as a research assistant with a Crown Family School faculty member for 10-12 hours each week and participate in at least three mentored teaching experiences (usually during years three through five).

* The University is implementing a new framework for doctoral education, to be phased in over two years beginning in 2020-21, which includes a new funding model and new resources and programs for all doctoral students and faculty across campus. The new framework, announced by the Provost in 2019, builds on some of the recommendations of the Committee on Graduate Education (https://provost.uchicago.edu/sites/default/files/Committee on Graduate Education Report.pdf), which included representatives from Crown Family School, and ongoing work by deans, faculty, and students across campus.

This new model represents the University's commitment to doctoral students by increasing financial support, re-envisioning the role of pedagogical training, and expanding the programs that support academic and career success. In addition to a guaranteed funding stipend, the new program includes full tuition coverage, and health insurance for PhD students in good academic standing. It also includes new academic, career, and mentoring programs and resources that will be available to PhD students and faculty across campus. Students who began their program in Summer 2016 or later will be rolled into this new model and funded for the duration of their program and those who began their program before Summer 2016 may be eligible for additional funding through dissertation completion fellowships, as well as other mentoring support.

This information (<https://provost.uchicago.edu/initiatives/phd-funding-and-support/>) from the University Provost includes further information about the new funding and programs for PhD students.

Office of Grants and Contracts

The Crown Family School Office of Grants and Contracts provides support to doctoral students in:

- Funding Opportunity Searches
- Proposal Planning and Development
- Central Administration/Sponsor Liaison
- Award Administration
- Financial Management/Coordination of Financial Reports to Sponsors

Travel Support

Crown Family School also supports doctoral students for travel related to presentation of papers and job market activities at conferences. Other University resources for graduate students may be found here (<https://provost.uchicago.edu/issues/graduate-education/>).

AWARDS ADMINISTERED BY ORGANIZATIONS AND AGENCIES OUTSIDE THE SCHOOL

Students may also supplement their Crown Family School scholarship awards with private loans, grants, and scholarships through state and private agencies, and part-time employment on- or off-campus. For more information about other forms of financial assistance, visit <http://crownschool.uchicago.edu/additional-resources> (<http://crownschool.uchicago.edu/additional-resources/>) and <http://www.uchicago.edu/jobs/>.

LOAN FUNDS

The majority of our master’s students use federal financial aid in the form of student loans and work-study funds to bridge the gap between their Crown Family School scholarship and the cost of attendance. Crown Family School students work closely with the University’s Graduate Financial Aid (<https://financialaid.uchicago.edu/graduate/>) to facilitate the awarding of federal aid, including Federal Direct Loans, GradPLUS Loans, and work-study.

Named University and Crown Family School Loan Funds

The University has a number of endowed loan funds from which emergency, short-term, or longer-term loans may be granted to full-time students. Some loans require a co-signer. These loans have interest rates ranging from 3 to 7 percent.

Note: Regulations governing student loan programs have varied significantly in recent years. Current information regarding terms, repayment, and eligibility may be obtained from: Office of Financial Aid (<https://financialaid.uchicago.edu/graduate/>), 1101 E. 58th Street, Chicago, IL 60637 773.702.6061.
